

JUNCTION BOX

The FEBASE Junction Box is a specialized mounting solution designed for seamless integration with the FISHEYE camera housing. Engineered for durability and ease of installation, this junction box ensures that your camera system is securely mounted while providing effective cable management and protection for wiring connections. Constructed from high-quality, weather-resistant materials, the FEBASE offers reliable protection against the elements, making it suitable for both indoor and outdoor applications. Its compact and efficient design helps organize and conceal wiring, preventing cable strain and contributing to a cleaner, more professional installation.
